

Corrigendum to

“Solutions and case studies for thermally driven reactive transport and porosity evolution in geothermal systems (reactive Lauwerier problem)” published in Hydrol. Earth Syst. Sci., 28, 4559–4576, 2024

Roi Roded¹, Einat Aharonov², Piotr Szymczak³, Manolis Veveakis¹, Boaz Lazar², and Laura E. Dalton¹

¹Civil and Environmental Engineering, Duke University, Durham, NC, USA

²Institute of Earth Sciences, The Hebrew University, Jerusalem, Israel

³Institute of Theoretical Physics, Faculty of Physics, University of Warsaw, Warsaw, Poland

Correspondence: Roi Roded (roi.roded@mail.huji.ac.il)

Published: 20 November 2025

Due to an oversight during submission, wrong units were published in Table 1 of this paper. In Table 1 the total volumetric flow rate (Q) units should be $\text{m}^3 \text{d}^{-1}$ rather than $\text{m}^3 \text{s}^{-1}$. In the main text on p. 4565, the correct units are stated.