The authors would like to appreciate the referee’s useful comments on this work and for providing possible future direction to improve this research.

As suggested by the referee, more historical rainfall observations will be used to help assess the capability and understand the constraints of the proposed method. And to clarify the possible confusion in this paper and the associated issues raised by the other referee S. Lovejoy, the authors edit a detailed response to the comments. Please refer to the attached supplement in the response to Referee S. Lovejoy’s comments.
