

The authors added the analysis of time series change of the groundwater level measurements in revised manuscript and validated the water storage loss in NCP from some extent. The authors also compared the difference between the result in the manuscript and previous study. Furthermore, the reason why water mass loss trend from GRACE is different with GPS results has been explained carefully in the revised manuscript. In my opinion, the manuscript can be accepted and be published in this journal now.