The authors of this comment paper who write in criticism of V. Srinivasan et al. (2015) do not adhere to the spirit of open-access journals such as HESS and the responsibility to provide open-minded and constructive reviews. After reading their submission, I find that this comment article is written in a non-collegial form, with a close-minded and aggressive tone (i.e., the title alone is enough to suggest as much), and any constructive criticism the authors might be trying to communicate gets downed out as such. This comment article should be removed by the Editor.
