

Interactive comment on “Streamflow forecast sensitivity to air temperature forecast calibration for 139 Norwegian catchments” by Trine J. Hegdahl et al.

J.S. Verkade (Referee)

jan.verkade@deltares.nl

Received and published: 16 November 2018

This manuscript is suitable for publication. The research described in it has a clear objective which is to try and determine if 'calibrated temperature ensemble forecasts' result in better streamflow forecasts compared to the non-calibrated equivalents. The research setting, the approach and the data used is well described and the results are well laid out. I have a few concerns/questions/suggestions but these would require only minor revisions to the manuscript.

Please also note the supplement to this comment:

C1

<https://www.hydrol-earth-syst-sci-discuss.net/hess-2018-373/hess-2018-373-RC3-supplement.pdf>

---

Interactive comment on Hydrol. Earth Syst. Sci. Discuss., <https://doi.org/10.5194/hess-2018-373>, 2018.

C2