Dear Professor Selker,

Thank you very much for commenting on my work that you have sent. Indeed, in the analysis of literature I omitted several works, including both papers from 2017 and 2018, which you are the co-author of. This is a serious mistake and I cannot (though with some regret) disagree with your final proposal regarding the publication of my work in its current form. In the revised version I will certainly include these works and refer to them. Nevertheless, I have to mention that the procedure for lengthening the time step proposed by me substantially differs from the use of an exponential function presented by you, although final results may be similar in both cases. I hope that reading the second version of my work (not completed as yet, I am waiting for the second review) will be a bit more pleasing and you find it valuable.

Sincerely,

Jacek Kurnatowski
