We appreciate Dr. Wang for his instructive comments of our manuscript. At present we'd like provide a general reply to his questions.

As for comment 2, we note that Dr. Wang has proposed many good and instructive advices on the expression of the manuscript. General we agree and we'll consider each of the suggestions in the revision. The most important point highlighted here is concerning the errors and uncertainties of the data; and these can be clarified by making a more detailed description of the data source and data processing. In addition, the organization of the origin text may be reorganized in a more clear and logic way.
