Dear Editor,

We thank you for the acceptance of our manuscript. Enclosed please find the final version of the manuscript titled "Analysis of high streamflow extremes in climate change studies: How do we calibrate hydrological models?", reference number hess-2021-467.

Sincerely,

Bruno Majone

on behalf of the authors

Address

Department of Civil, Environmental and Mechanical Engineering, University of Trento, via Mesiano 77, 38123 Trento, Italy

email: bruno.majone@unitn.it

Reply to Editor

Dear authors,

Thank you for your responses and the carefully revised manuscript, I am pleased to accept your paper for publication subject to some technical corrections.

Reply

We thank the Editor for his positive assessment and for the acceptance of our manuscript.

The manuscript requires further proofreading to improve its English language and sentence composition. Some examples are provided below:

Reply

We performed an additional careful proofreading of the manuscript as requested.

Line 70-73:

this sentence is too long and can be broken down into smaller sentences.

Reply

Thank you for noticing this. We reformulated the sentence along the lines suggested by the Editor.

Line 303: In a strict statistical sense

Change to In a "strictly" statistical sense

Reply

We changed the wording to "From a statistical viewpoint, ..."

Congratulations and thank you for contributing to HESS!

Sincerely,

Yi He, HESS Editor

Reply

We really thank the Editor for the comment.